Michigan Civil War Sesquicentennial Circular

Michigan Remembers the Civil War -

One of the finest books I've read about the Civil War is the book by Jay Winik, titled, April 1865-The Month That Saved America.

So that I can share as such information with you as I'd like and not give you a terribly long circular to scroll through, I intend to publish several issues this month.

One thing that was just sent to me by a friend was the announcement from the Christ Church Cranbrook of Bloomfield Hills, MI, that they will be participating in the National Park Service effort to have church bells all across the nation at 3:15 PM on Thursday, April 9 in commemoration of the surrender of Lee's army at Appomattox 150 years ago.

While it may be too late, and I'm sorry I didn't know about this earlier, but maybe you could contact your church and if they have bells, they could participate too.

Thank you for your support in remembering Michigan in the Civil War.
